He's a celeb, right?

Lesson learned: If you tell enough people you're famous, they'll believe it ◗ SUNY-New Paltz student Brett Cohen does a little Times Square social experiment ◗ Hundreds of 'fans' ask him to pose for photos ◗ Some claim they've heard his music or seen him in movie 'Spider-Man'

Judging from the crowd of frenzied fans surrounding Brett Cohen in Times Square, you'd assume he was the star of Hollywood's latest blockbuster.

But 21-year-old Brett Cohen isn't an actor. Nor is he a musician, an athlete, or a model. Brett Cohen is a prankster — and on the night of July 27, he duped thousands of people into thinking he was a huge celebrity.

Cohen, a media management student at SUNY-New Paltz and a Long Island native, planned the fake celebrity stunt with a group of friends just to see if they could pull it off. They recruited two bodyguards from ads on Craiglist, planted paparazzi-style photographers and personal assistants. Cohen, though, had to make sure he looked the part. He donned a collared shirt, jeans, tinted sunglasses and spiked hair.

"I was going for a Tom Cruise kind of look," Cohen, who posted the video online Wednesday, told Metro.

He entered NBC on 50th Street and exited at 49th Street to a small crowd of people who gathered after his "assistants" told them a big celebrity was about to exit. Cohen said his crew did not plant any fans and all the reactions seen in the video are 100 percent real. His "assistants" were instructed not to tell people anything about him or why he was famous.

"The crowds grew on every block," Cohen said. "People would praise my work. They'd say, 'Oh my God, I can't believe it. I'm such a big fan.' Only one guy said, 'I don't know who you are.' I said, 'Well, I don't know you who are, either.' And that was it."

Cohen's co-producer, Edward Sturm, was part of a camera crew interviewing fans in the crowd.

"I think it's ridiculous," Cohen laughed. "It makes a point about culture and how people are so obsessed with celebrity."

The prank continued for several blocks until one of Cohen's bodyguards ushered the crew into a hotel bar. The crowd eventually dissipated. At the end of the video, Cohen is seen walking to the subway as if nothing had happened.

Cohen is scheduled to appear on "Good Morning America" Friday.

▶ People begged Brett Cohen to pose for photos once they heard he was a "celebrity."

'This is the best day of my life!'

Cohen estimates he posed for about 300 photos that night. He said the crowd was a mix of tourists and New Yorkers.

Some people said they recognized Cohen from the movie "Spider-Man." Others said they'd heard his music and thought he had a bright future.

In one group of excited teenaged fans, a girl can be heard saying, "This is the best day of my life! I love him!"

Whole Foods Market opened its newest location in New York City on Thursday, at 226 East 57th Street. Chapman denied

Mark David Chapman, who shot and killed former Beatle John Lennon 32 years ago on the Upper West Side, was denied parole for a seventh time, New York State's Department of Corrections said on Thursday. Women asked to join topless march Sunday

BRYANT PARK. Yes, it's legal for women to be topless in New York State. On Sunday, a group is looking to gather some, er, support for that right.

GoTopless, a group that says it is "dedicated to attaining women's rights to go barechested," is organizing a march through Midtown on Sunday of topless women.

The group says it is petitioning the Obama administration to have that right recognized nationally.

"Any state or local law making it illegal for a woman to go topless is unconstitutional, but most people don't know that," said GoTopless' president, Nadine Gary. "That's why we're taking the issue of topless rights to the top by demanding the president's attention to this issue."

Gary is calling for women to join her at noon in Bryant Park Sunday. From there the group will march to Times Square and back — ideally topless, she says.

In 1992, a New York State court ruled that women can go topless the same way men can. METRO/CB

Rejected payroll tax a blow to cash-starved MTA

NEW YORK. A payroll tax projected to pump $1.26 billion into the MTA's budget this year may not provide another penny after a state judge struck it down as unconstitutional.

New York Supreme Court Judge R. Bruce Cozzens Jr. held the levy violated a provision in the state constitution, and required a two-thirds vote to pass the Legislature, which it didn't get, according to a copy of the decision.

Cozzens agreed with Nassau County Executive Edward Mangano's request to overturn the law that created the tax.

34 The tax required employers to set aside as much as 34 cents for every $100 in payroll costs.

The tax required employers to set aside as much as 34 cents for every $100 in payroll costs, MTA spokesman Aaron Donovan said. The tax covers a 12-county area including the city and surrounding suburbs. The MTA vowed to appeal the ruling. BLOOMBERG

Cops punished for offensive West Indian parade remarks

NYPD disciplines 17 cops who left racist rants about parade on Facebook
'Drop a bomb and wipe them all out' wrote one commenter of parade attendees
Four of the police still face department trials for misconduct

Top NYPD brass announced Thursday they are disciplining 17 cops who made offensive and racist comments on Facebook following last year's West Indian Day Parade in Crown Heights.

Last September, officers assigned to cover the Labor Day parade bitterly complained on a Facebook page called "No More West Indian Day Detail." About 250 comments in all were made on the page, including relatively benign grumblings about having to work on Labor Day to more extreme comments calling parade attendees "savages" and "animals."

"Let them kill each other," wrote someone who matched a cop's name.

"I say have the parade one more year and when they all gather drop a bomb and wipe them all out," was another.

Some comments were written by names that matched registered New York City police officers and others were left anonymously. Some cops claimed their Facebook accounts had been hijacked.

An Internal Affairs investigation into the matter was launched last September, and investigators found that 20 people who posted in the group matched the names of current NYPD officers.

NYPD spokesman Paul Browne announced Thursday that 17 cops in total will be punished for leaving the remarks.

Most of the cops received low levels of punishment, but four officers will face more severe punishment: They will stand departmental trials on misconduct charges.

"It seems the NYPD took this seriously, and I'm glad they did that," said Councilman Jumaane Williams, who goes to the parade every year to celebrate his parents' Grenadian heritage.

"It was disheartening [to read those comments], but was it necessarily surprising?" Williams asked.

Colorful parade, but tinged by gun violence

The West Indian Day Parade attracts hundreds of thousands every year, and it will again be held this Labor Day. The parade celebrates the food, music and culture of the Caribbean, but it has been marked by violence. Last year, three shootings occurred in connection with the parade. METRO/CB

US surprised by Navy SEAL's book on bin Laden raid

WASHINGTON. The U.S. government was surprised by the news that a Navy SEAL who participated in the raid on Osama bin Laden's compound in Pakistan has written a book about the operation in which the al Qaeda leader was killed, U.S. officials said on Thursday.

"No Easy Day: The Firsthand Account of the Mission that Killed Osama Bin Laden" was written by a Navy SEAL under the pseudonym Mark Owen with co-author Kevin Maurer and is to be released next month on the anniversary of the attacks on Sept. 11, 2011.

It was not vetted by government agencies to ensure that no secrets were revealed. REUTERS

New Hampshire candidate backs down on threats

BOSTON. A Republican candidate in New Hampshire backed down from a suggestion he would use "deadly force" to stop doctors from performing abortions, saying he "let his imagination get out of control."

Frank Szabo, who is running for sheriff in Hillsborough County, caused a uproar with his threats to crack down on legal abortion with arrests, prosecution and actions aimed at doctors.

"Deadly force is always a last resort," Szabo said in a TV interview on Wednesday. "Why would anyone object to the use of deadly force to prevent the murder of an unborn human?" REUTERS

Rodney King drowned in drug, alcohol delirium

KEVORK DJANSEZIAN/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Police were called to King's home on June 17 by his fiance, Cynthia Kelly, who told authorities she was awakened by a noise to find him at the bottom of the pool.

Rodney King was in a drug- and alcohol-induced "delirium" when he accidentally drowned in his pool, coroners ruled on Thursday.

The final autopsy report was issued by medical examiners in San Bernardino County two months after King, 47, was found submerged at the deep end of a swimming pool at his home in Rialto, a suburb about 50 miles east of Los Angeles.

The death was ruled an accidental drowning, and listed "alcohol and multiple drug toxicity" as contributing causes, Rialto police Captain Randy De Anda told Reuters.

He said coroners found cocaine, PCP and marijuana in King's body.

"Our investigation is now concluded," De Anda said. "The conclusions that our investigation revealed have been reinforced by the autopsy and toxicology report."

> RIALTO POLICE CAPTAIN RANDY DE ANDA TOLD REUTERS OF CONTRIBUTING CAUSES

The findings of the autopsy and other postmortem studies performed by medical examiners "indicated he was in a state of drug- and alcohol-induced delirium at the time of this terminal event," he said, quoting from the report.

The coroners concluded that King fell or jumped into his backyard pool, he added.

He said medical examiners listed abrasions and other signs of "minor trauma" consistent with someone drowning or being pulled out of a swimming pool. REUTERS

WEEKEND

ROCK THE VETO

The Silversun Pickups and Tom Morello are not the only ones raging against the politicians
A look at the history of songwriters who have forbidden candidates from using their tunes

Q&A

▶ King Tuff

King Tuff

King Tuff makes anthemic music, but politicians probably won't approach a guy with a song called "Alone and Stoned." We see what would happen anyway.

Would you ever let a politician use one of your songs?
Of course!
Would you have to support the candidate for him or her to use one of your songs?
Nope! "Keep on Movin'" or "Baby Just Break" would be good campaign songs. "Losers Wall" would not be a wise choice.
Regardless of issues, if the candidate offered you money, would you allow song use?
Obviously!
How much would it take?

The past week and a half has seen a number of musicians publicly complaining about their involuntary association with politicians. Responses have been uniformly biting and mostly funny. Last Wednesday, the Silversun Pickups issued a statement to the Romney campaign about the inappropriate use of their song "Panic Switch."

"We don't like people going behind our backs, using our music without asking, and we don't like the Romney campaign," wrote singer Brian Aubert. "We're nice, approachable people. We won't bite. Unless you're Mitt Romney!"

Last Thursday, Tom Morello of Rage Against the Machine wrote an open letter via Rolling Stone to Romney's running mate Paul Ryan, who said Rage was one of his favorite bands.

"Paul Ryan's love of Rage Against the Machine is amusing," wrote Morello, "because he is the embodiment of the machine that our music has been raging against for two decades."

And just this Tuesday, Dee Snider of Twisted Sister asked Ryan to stop playing his band's "We're Not Gonna Take It."

"There is almost nothing on which I agree with Paul Ryan," Snider told a Talking Points Memo reporter, "except perhaps the use of the P90X."

PAT HEALY
pat.healy@metro.us

We're not gonna take it

Musicians who deny candidates from using their music is not a new thing.

In the 1964 presidential campaign, Republican candidate Barry Goldwater wanted to use "Hello Dolly" and change the words to "Hello Barry." Upon learning that the song was being appropriated for rallies, the show's producer, David Merrick, an outspoken Democrat, reportedly approached the campaign and said they were violating copyright law. Word got out to the campaign of Goldwater's opponent, Lyndon Johnson, and they tapped Carol Channing, who was playing the lead in "Dolly," to record "Hello Lyndon." No one complained.

In 1984, when Ronald Reagan mentioned Bruce Springsteen in a speech, the musician was very quick to publicly distance himself from the president.

In 1988, when George Bush ran for president, he used Bobby McFerrin's hit "Don't Worry, Be Happy," and quickly received a cease and desist.

In 1996, Bob Dole tried to pull a "Hello Dolly" and turn Sam and Dave's "Soul Man" into "Dole Man." The publisher of the song threatened to sue.

Tom Petty sent George W. Bush a cease and desist order for using "I Won't Back Down" in his campaign in 2000. Petty later performed the song at the house of Al Gore after he gave his concession speech when Bush was determined the winner of the election.

In 2008, John McCain's music choices seemed humorously self-aware, employing ABBA's "Take a Chance on Me" and Jackson Browne's "Running on Empty." But the musicians weren't exactly in on the joke, and in the only instance of a presidential candidate being sued by a musician, a California District Court ruled in favor of Browne, forcing McCain to pay up. McCain also unsuccessfully tried to use songs by Heart, Foo Fighters, Van Halen and John Mellencamp.

Republicans aren't the only ones to get in trouble for their music choices. In 2008, when Barack Obama used Sam and Dave's soul classic, "Hold On, I'm Coming" at appearances, singer Sam Moore (he who also objected to the use of "Dole Man") asked Obama to stop. The singer didn't endorse Obama, but said, "It is thrilling, in my lifetime, to see that our country has matured to the place where it is no longer an impossibility for a man of color to really be considered as a legitimate candidate for the highest office."

Brian Jonestown Massacre singer on his gripes with American culture and his zeal for the German way of life

SASCHA EISENMANN + ID

‘The mainstream is a sewer’

Maintaining a band for 20 years while eschewing mainstream culture is no easy feat. But despite Anton Newcombe’s brush with near-celebrity a few years back when his band, Brian Jonestown Massacre, engaged in a well-documented spat with the Dandy Warhols, the singer and songwriter has maintained enough popularity to prosper and continue while remaining spiritually and artistically in the underground.

“Let’s be honest: The mainstream is a sewer,” Newcombe states, adding a few acronyms — MTV, TMZ — as examples of what he deems a murky puddle. “Why on Earth would I want to be anywhere near any of it? ... Growing up in Newport Beach and watching the culture change from local and well-to-do to transient new money bulls— forced me to forsake it forever.”

Newcombe is no longer a So-Cal boy. These days he lives in Berlin, hence the title of BJM’s latest album, “Aufheben.”

“It’s the last place in the Western world that will adopt the outward trapping of a police state as we glide ever deeper into something that looks like and feels like corporate fascism,” he says of his adopted city. “The people of Germany have experience with government overstepping human rights to the point of genocide. As a culture, it is overwhelmingly on guard to learn and atone for the past and work hard to build a better future,” he says, adding a succinct: “I love the energy.”

What does ‘aufheben’ mean?

Hegel defined it as to end something and to raise something to a higher level. Newcombe says: “I think the word ‘aufheben’ is topical on a personal level and a global level. ... That and the phrase ‘yield to overcome.’ Sometimes you ... take stock to excel, other times you need to rip it up and start again to reach greatness.”

After Mean Irene canceled last year's event, the celebration of alternative black culture is back and better than ever with a packed lineup of marquee bands

Where were you a year ago this weekend? If you lived in one of the five boroughs, you were probably holed up in your apartment, hiding from Hurricane Irene. That was also the case for the organizers of Brooklyn's Afropunk festival, who first had to make the heartbreaking decision to cancel the event.

"We were literally in the park and it was all built and we had to pull it all out," says Matthew Morgan, who co-founded the Afropunk organization in 2002. Canceling the two-day event nearly crushed the group because of the amount of expenses Mean Irene racked up. Taking such a hit left the coordinators discouraged and just a bit heartbroken.

"When something like that happens, you ask yourself, as I do every year, 'Why are we doing this?'" Morgan says. "But we cobble it together and make it work because what it is, is bigger than us."

Morgan and his colleagues founded the festival as a means of exposing city kids to a vibrant but underrepresented current of African-American culture.

"Initially I just wanted to put on shows because I couldn't get shows for some of the bands that I was managing," Morgan explains. "There wasn't this platform for alternative black culture and it just made me mad."

Situating the festival in Commodore Barry Park, which, Morgan notes, is sandwiched between two of the largest public housing projects in Brooklyn, the hope is that impressionable kids will have a mind-broadening experience when they enjoy not just the music, but the skate competition, art wall, thrift market, biker competition and newly added food trucks that are a part of the event.

"It was in a Jay-Z song, where he talks about living 20 minutes from Central Park but not knowing that it existed. These kids have all this stuff around them — food truck festivals in Park Slope, parks and all this stuff in the city — they can be three blocks from it and not know that it exists," Morgan says. "It's really exciting to put all that in front of the 15, 16, 19 [and] 20 year olds and have them experience it for the first time."

Writing a new Gershwin musical is 'Nice Work If You Can Get It'

Starring Matthew Broderick ("The Producers") and Kelli O'Hara ("South Pacific"), directed and choreographed by award-winning Kathleen Marshall ("Anything Goes"), "Nice Work If You Can Get It" incorporates classic George and Ira Gershwin tunes into a brand-new 1920s-themed musical comedy about bootlegging, flapper-era playboys and, of course, finding romance. We spoke with book writer Joe Dipietro about tackling the project of making what's old seem new again on Broadway.

How did you get involved with "Nice Work"?

The Gershwin estate called me because they had been trying to develop a new musical comedy for a while. … They wanted to do a real 1920s musical comedy — which is what the Gershwins were known for. And I thought, oh my God, I love this genre. I'm the guy for this, I really know how to write this.

You weren't worried it would seem dated?

The Gershwin music is timeless. … [It] still stands up the best. George Gershwin was sort of the rock star of his day. You can tell just in the rhythm and the joy of his music, there's a lot similar to a Gershwin tune and contemporary rock 'n' roll. [But] the original comedies were written of their day — they were very flimsy, they wrote two or three a year because they never expected them to last. So they would throw in jugglers and dog acts and the producer's girlfriend and whatever they wanted to do, just this sort of formless entertainment.

Did the estate already know the Gershwins' "Porgy and Bess" was also heading to Broadway?

Oh, no, no, no. We're next-door neighbors, an even bigger coincidence! In theater it always seems like everything is planned out — but it's when the stars are available, the theater's available, the money is raised, the project feels ready. So it's really a coincidence. I just saw "Godspell" and "Jesus Christ Superstar" — who would have thought? It's the theater muses playing tricks on us.

And today's audiences are still embracing these kinds of plays?

The creative teams really try to make both shows seem as fresh and relevant as possible. Neither seems musty, or like a revival, or a new old musical just for that sake. They both seem to speak to us in these times. If either of them just seemed old-fashioned and nostalgic, I don't think either of them would be doing as well as they are!

"I was trying to write the archetypes of the time, but put a modern spin on it. In those 1920s musicals, the women are just the chorus girl or the girlfriend or looking for love. I wanted to give the women career ambitions and power in this show." JOE DIPIETRO

Movie reviews

OPEN ROAD FILMS

▶ Real-life and onscreen couple Dax Shepard and Kristen Bell helm the team behind "Hit and Run."

'Hit and Run'

Grade: ●●○○○

Dax Shepard stars as an ex-getaway driver who leaves behind the safety of witness protection to accompany his girlfriend (Kristen Bell) on a job interview to Los Angeles. Unfortunately, as he hits the road so does his former partner in crime (Bradley Cooper). Shepard and Bell are a couple in real life, and the chemistry between them shows. When it's just the two of them onscreen, "Hit and Run" has the makings of a fun, romantic action-adventure. Unfortunately the movie is also populated by peripheral characters with the combined charm of a slap (stick) to the face.

RICHARD CROUSE

'Premium Rush'

Grade: ●●○○○

"Premium Rush" is like a BMX race with a plot line. Bikes dart in and out of traffic, defy the laws of gravity and spin on one wheel, which is all cool, except that it overshadows the characters. Only Michael Shannon as the out-of-control cop is memorable enough to rise above the bike stunts and skinned elbows.

It doesn't seem meant to be taken seriously as a thriller. Any cop who would say, "I forgot to bring my bullets. I'll meet you there," to his cop buddies isn't trying to be Detective Sergeant Joe Friday. He's a wild, bug-eyed caricature of a man on the edge and the second-most entertaining thing in the flick (next to the bikes). There isn't much of substance here, but it is a fun ride. METRO/RC

Want to make jam, but don't have the Ball (jar)s? Laena McCarthy's new book aims to demystify canning for urban cooks

It happens about this time every year. Confronted with a bounty of fresh fruit, we think, "This is the year I make my own jam." But we never do. Whether it's fear of contamination or lack of kitchen space, something always stops us short of, ahem, sealing the deal.

To help quell our fears, we turned to Brooklyn-based jammer Laena McCarthy, founder of Anarchy in a Jar (www.anarchyinajar.com) and author of the new book "Jam On: The Craft of Canning Fruit."

"I teach a lot of classes, and almost everybody who attends are totally smart, fully capable cooks. But they're terrified that they're going to kill someone if they make jam," she tells us.

"Essentially," she continues, "you cannot kill someone. The pH in fruit is low enough that things like botulism can't grow in that environment."

McCarthy had the advantage of watching her mother make jam from local produce and garden herbs in upstate New York. Her personal technique, she says, is a blend of traditional American and European styles that reduces cooking time as well as the amount of added sugar, "slowly but surely letting the fruit do the work." The result is a fresher-tasting jam that lends itself to both sweet and savory applications, including meat glazes and even cocktails — her grapefruit and smoked salt jam is excellent stirred into a little gin and soda water.

"Jam On" guides first-time canners through the process of preserving, from choosing raw fruits to creating complex, whiskey-spiked jellies, jams, butters and chutneys.

"It's pretty foolproof," she says. "The berries only cook for a short amount of time, so the whole process is very quick. ... It's pretty hard to screw up."

Talking tax codes with Beanie Sigel

ALL PHOTOS: GETTY IMAGES

▶ Beanie Sigel has some words for Uncle Sam.

On Sept. 12, Beanie Sigel is due to report to prison for a two-year stay for tax evasion. Even though the Philly rapper pleaded guilty to failing to pay around $350,000 on unreported income, he's not going quietly.

In fact, Sigel has a perfectly good explanation for not filing between 2003-2005: "The years that they charged me for failure to file taxes is years that I was incarcerated," he tells MTV of his previous stint for weapons and drug charges. "When you're incarcerated in a federal facility, you're not allowed to conduct any business at all."

That's a little like being late for work because your bartender was moving slow. But sure — we've been there. The thing is, Sigel doesn't really intend to pay up no matter where he's living. "You shouldn't be able to tax income," he says. "If I fix your roof and you wanna pay me in 20 pounds of bananas, do you think Uncle Sam wants 45 percent of my bananas? But because you're paying me $400,000 in currency he wants a part of that."

Beanie, whenever you make it out of prison, we fear you and your nonlogic have a career in politics.

Make this stop

As we mentioned on Thursday, Avril Lavigne is engaged to Nickelback frontman Chad Kroeger. But not just any old engaged — engaged with a gigantic ring.

"We helped Chad custom create Avril's dream ring: a platinum-set pear-shape diamond with half moons totaling 14 carats," designer Caryn Alpert tells People magazine, before having the nerve to add: "What a perfect pair/pear!"

That's right — Nickelback has sold enough albums to fund a 14-carat ring. Now, more than ever, we're disappointed in all of you.

▶ Satan will have the vegetarian option.

▶ Mini Snooks is on the way.

Get this girl some ice chips

The spawn of Snooki is due to arrive in just three short weeks. One thing the reality star is not doing to prepare? Lamaze classes.

"Lamaze is bulls—," she tells In Touch, setting off Gwyneth Paltrow's yuppie eye twitch. "They teach you how to breathe. Are you really going to be worrying about how to breathe when you're having a baby? No! You're going to be screaming and throwing s—."

Talking points

Have no fear: Spears is getting married

Contrary to reports that Britney Spears might be getting cold feet, the singer is still very much planning to marry fiance Justin Trawick, according to People magazine. "There's no truth to any second thoughts about their wedding," a source says. Those rumors began cropping up when Spears was spotted recently without her engagement ring. But the absence was work-related, the source explains: "She was not wearing her ring last week because she took it off during an Elizabeth Arden [photo] shoot and Jason was holding it for her. He simply forgot to give it back until later."

A family affair for Angelina Jolie

It looks like Angelina Jolie is OK with her kids getting in on the act, as one of her children — 4-year-old daughter Vivienne — will get some screen time with mom. "Angelina Jolie's daughter will play a minor role as the child version of Princess Aurora opposite her mother in 'Maleficent,'" a statement from Disney confirms. Elle Fanning will play the older version of the princess.

Hayek angers her home country

Salma Hayek is drawing fire for comments in an interview with German Vogue that suggest she's lost touch with her Mexican roots. "Honestly, I hardly had any memories of what it is to be a Mexican woman," she tells the magazine when asked about filming "Traffic" 12 years ago. "My life is completely different now." Blog Guanabee.com took offense to that, writing, "What did Salma mean by basically saying she forgot what it's like? That she's too French and rich for our blood?"

Time is on their side

Not all that much from the '80s stands the test of time. But these guys? Very welcome exceptions. (Check back Monday for ladies who make the cut.) Clockwise, from top left:

1 Keanu Reeves looked pretty good in 1987. But 2012 isn't treating him too bad, either.

2 Rob Lowe has aged startlingly little over two and a half decades.

3 Who could have guessed that Neil Patrick Harris of "Doogie Howser M.D." would have grown up to look like this?

4 Have mercy: John Stamos has actually gotten better looking since his "Full House" days.

5 Buying it: "Pretty in Pink" hottie Andrew McCarthy is still prom material.

6 Between 1985 and 2012, all Tom Cruise did was go shopping, apparently.

Restore that ol' American pride

RE: "DONE ANYTHING FOR YOUR COUNTRY LATELY?" (METRO, AUG. 21) This is in response to the letter from John McLaughlin regarding the difference between the way Republicans and many Democrats think. I could not agree more! Way too many people out there have this false sense of entitlement, and we are the people that have to foot the bill for them. It's disgusting and something needs to change here, because it's only going to get worse. Thank you, John, for that letter.

LISA PAPARO, ASTORIA

Akin's mouth showed true colors

RE: "AKINS WRONG DOESN'T REPRESENT THE RIGHT" (METRO, AUG. 22) In reply to Kevin Metz, the Akin gaffe was just that: a Republican expressing exactly how he really feels.

We know this from their policies/planks: no exceptions to abortion. They just re-affirmed it. This gives incentives to rapists and makes our daughters, wives and mothers cower. What kind of man will stand for this? Not me. It's lucky Akin is all the way over in Missouri.

PETE WALKER, PHILADELPHIA

'PC' has place in polite society

RE: "COURT DATE NEEDED TO ERADICATE 'PC'" (METRO, AUG. 22) It's a mistake for letter writer Marvin Finkelstein to think of political correctness as "an assault on free expression." It would be better to consider that the concept of political correctness evolved out of a desire to be more sensitive to people who have been discriminated against due to their race, sex, age, religion or sexual orientation.

JOHN FRANCIS FOX, VIA E-MAIL

All Republicans want to hurt you

I see Mr. Romney's banging on the deficit again — the deficit started by Reagan, amplified by Bush, cleared by Clinton, re-made by Bush 2 and inherited by Obama. He's trying to drown out the revulsion with his party's war against women's rights. These people are about one thing — exploitation. The half of America that can't see it had better wise up.

PAUL SIMONS, PHILADELPHIA

Maybe wheels have reason to squeak

RE: "GAYS HATE THOSE WHO OPPOSE THEIR RIGHTS!" (METRO, AUG. 23): The letter writers accuse gays of intolerance. I haven't heard any gays telling others they can't marry. When a gay couple gets married, they're minding their own business and living according to their religion. Those who oppose gay marriage are demonstrating intolerance and imposing their religion on others. Americans should not be attacking other Americans or imposing their religion on others.

The letter writers forgot history. When minorities tried to lead normal lives, or when a woman complained about abuse, they were the ones who were vilified.

HARRY THORN, PHILADELPHIA

Horoscope

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. It behooves you to reassess your objectives in case you might be striving for something that's not worth the effort. Make sure that your priorities are in the right place.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Don't waste your time arguing with someone about an issue he or she isn't willing to budge on. It's likely to cause you a great deal of discomfort.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Instead of relying on another for support, try to be self-sufficient. Even if this person's help is forthcoming, you might find that you're better off without it.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. In order to be successful, it's imperative that you have staying power. Guard against slackening your effort just when your objective is within reach.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Just because associates might not be totally in accord with your interests, it doesn't mean they dislike you. To see things clearly, don't let emotions dictate your reasoning.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Certain advantages that you presently possess might be lost or undermined if you exert too much pressure on cohorts. Know when to stop pushing and when to start pleasing.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Chances are you'll get better terms if you allow the other party to make the first proposal in a business deal. Associates are apt to treat you more generously than you anticipate.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. As long as companions are cooperative and making concessions, you'll be extremely congenial. Should they not want what you want, it'll be another story.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. Provided you don't take on something that you're ill prepared to handle, the probability for fulfilling your ambitious objectives are good. Try to operate within known boundaries.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Unless you can rise above your emotions, think twice before attending a social gathering that will include some people you dislike. Trouble could result if you can't keep your cool.

Hunter loses tackle spot to Howard

After spending much of the last year blaming right tackle Wayne Hunter for their woes, Jets fans now have to find a new whipping boy.

On Thursday morning, head coach Rex Ryan announced Hunter is no longer the team's starting right tackle and that Austin Howard will be given a shot at the job.

"I know he's been heavily criticized," Ryan said of Hunter. "Was he perfect as a starting tackle? No, but you know what? Nobody is perfect." METRO/KD

Jeter ignores Bayless claim

After ESPN talking head Skip Bayless accused Derek Jeter of possibly using HGH, the Yankees captain laughed it off Wednesday night.

When told Bayless questioned his peformance this year at 38 years old, Jeter shrugged and said, "What do you want me to say? Maybe Skip should be tested. I don't know him, but ... ." METRO

Mets blow McHugh win

Collin McHugh gave the Mets seven shutout innings in his MLB debut. But it was the same old story as the bullpen came in and blew it.

McHugh left the game with it tied 0-0, before Bobby Parnell came in to pitch in the eighth inning and allowed the game-winning run on three hits. The Mets were swept in four games by the Rockies. METRO

Jets get jolt from Holmes in third preseason game

Team expects to add playmaker at receiver Kerley also likely to play Starters will go well into third quarter Game Sunday on NBC (8 p.m.)

Preseason game No. 3 is here, and the Jets are looking to break their 0-2 start and get some momentum heading into the games that really matter. They host the always dangerous Cam Newton and the Panthers in what should be a good test on both sides of the ball.

Metro gives you three things to watch for in Sunday night's game:

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Holmes should be back for Sunday's game.

1 Return to Health

Don't look now, but the Jets' offense is going to look markedly better. The team's biggest playmaker, Santonio Holmes, is expected to see some snaps after returning to the practice field this week. He nursed sore ribs during all of camp. He adds another dimension to the passing game. In addition, speedster Jeremy Kerley is closing in on a return from his hamstring injury, meaning that only Chaz Schilens remains a likely scratch from among the team's receivers.

2 An aggressive defense

The talk this week centered on their defense beginning to look like a dominant group. Last year, the unit was No. 6 in the league, but toward the end of the season, it looked nothing like a fearsome unit. With the Jets facing a number of no-huddle-type offenses and the multiple sets offered by teams like New England, an emphasis was placed on speed.

3 Roll with the starters

The third preseason game is a bit of an early Christmas present for football fans. Expect most of the starters to play a half, with many going well into the third quarter. If the Jets perform well during this stretch, it will show the true identity of the team more than the first two preseason games.

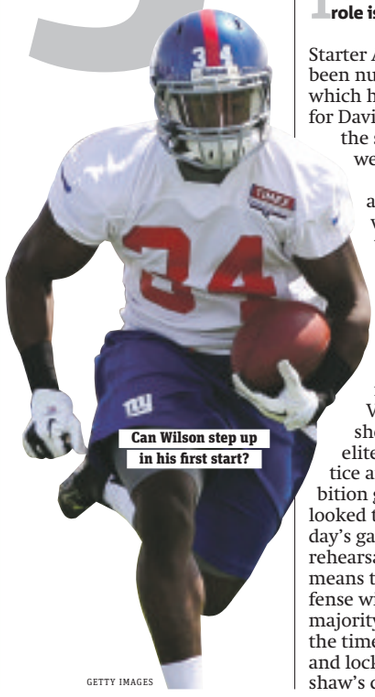
3 STORYLINES TO WATCH

Preseason Week 3: Giants vs. Bears, MetLife Stadium When: Friday, 8 p.m., CBS Next: vs. Patriots (Aug. 29)



Can Wilson step up in his first start?

GETTY IMAGES

1 Rookie David Wilson's role is increasing

Starter Ahmad Bradshaw has been nursing a bruised hand, which has opened the door for David Wilson to run with the starters in practice all week.

Wilson was admittedly "nervous, very nervous" in the two sessions as the No. 1 tailback. That was just in practice, so hopefully by game time, the jitters will be gone.

Wilson, the team's first-round pick from Virginia Tech, has shown flashes of his elite athleticism in practice and the first two exhibition games, but has also looked tentative at times. Friday's game is the "dress rehearsal" game, which means the vaunted Bears defense will be out there for a majority of the game. Now is the time for Wilson to shine and lock up the spot as Bradshaw's clear backup.

2 Other receivers need to step up besides Cruz

Victor Cruz will do Victor Cruz things, but Hakeem Nicks (foot) might not even play.

That means one of the other, non-descript wideouts needs to step up and take hold of the opportunity. Domenik Hixon got the first crack and has been steady but nowhere near as spectacular as the guy he's trying to replace — Mario Manningham. The shifty Jerrel Jernigan has big-play potential but hasn't separated himself. And rookie Rueben Randle has done what most high-round first-year players do — look great at times and lost at others.

3 Who among the walking wounded suits up?

The Giants have had at least 12 guys not dress due to injury in each of their first two preseason games, making it difficult to have a set rotation on both sides of the ball.

Left tackle Will Beatty (back) has yet to even practice. Weakside linebacker Michael Boley (hamstring) missed last week's game and may not play again on Friday.

And even key reserves like cornerbacks Jayron Hosley (foot) and Michael Coe (hamstring) continue to be hit or miss during practice sessions. Every team deals with camp ailments, but it seems like the past two preseasons have been unusually tough on Big Blue. TONY WILLIAMS

UFC 151 called off after injury to Henderson

Dan Henderson won't get a chance to upset champion Jon Jones after all. The 42-year-old Henderson partially tore his MCL and will have to pull out of the fight. As a result, UFC President Dana White called off a PPV event for the first time in his 11 years in charge of the company. Jones will likely fight Lyoto Machida on Sept. 22 in what was supposed to be UFC 152. METRO

In the news

Rogers gone

Tennessee's All-SEC receiver and likely first-round pick Da'rick Rogers has been suspended indefinitely and will likely miss the year.

The Volunteers announced Rogers was suspended for multiple violations of the school's substance abuse policy.

Rogers, a junior, had 67 catches and 1,040 yards with nine touchdowns last season.
